ASHTABULA, OHIO

"Individualism is a fatal poison. But individuality is the salt of common life."

In each person there is a store of individuality. In some people this individuality is barely perceptible; in others it is very evident. True individuality lends a strength to its possessor. It is the foundation upon which destiny depends.

School life affords many opportunities for a student to nurture his own individuality. But anyone who is attuned only to its academic aspects will overlook much of the material from which individuality may come--not only communion with books and learning but also the interplay of mind with mind, of personality with personality.

Observer or participant, every person who regularly inhabits a school is involved in its social, cultural, athletic, scholastic, or other activities.

These pages will reflect Harborites in many such involvements, some as observers, some as actors, all adding to their individuality, "the salt of common life."

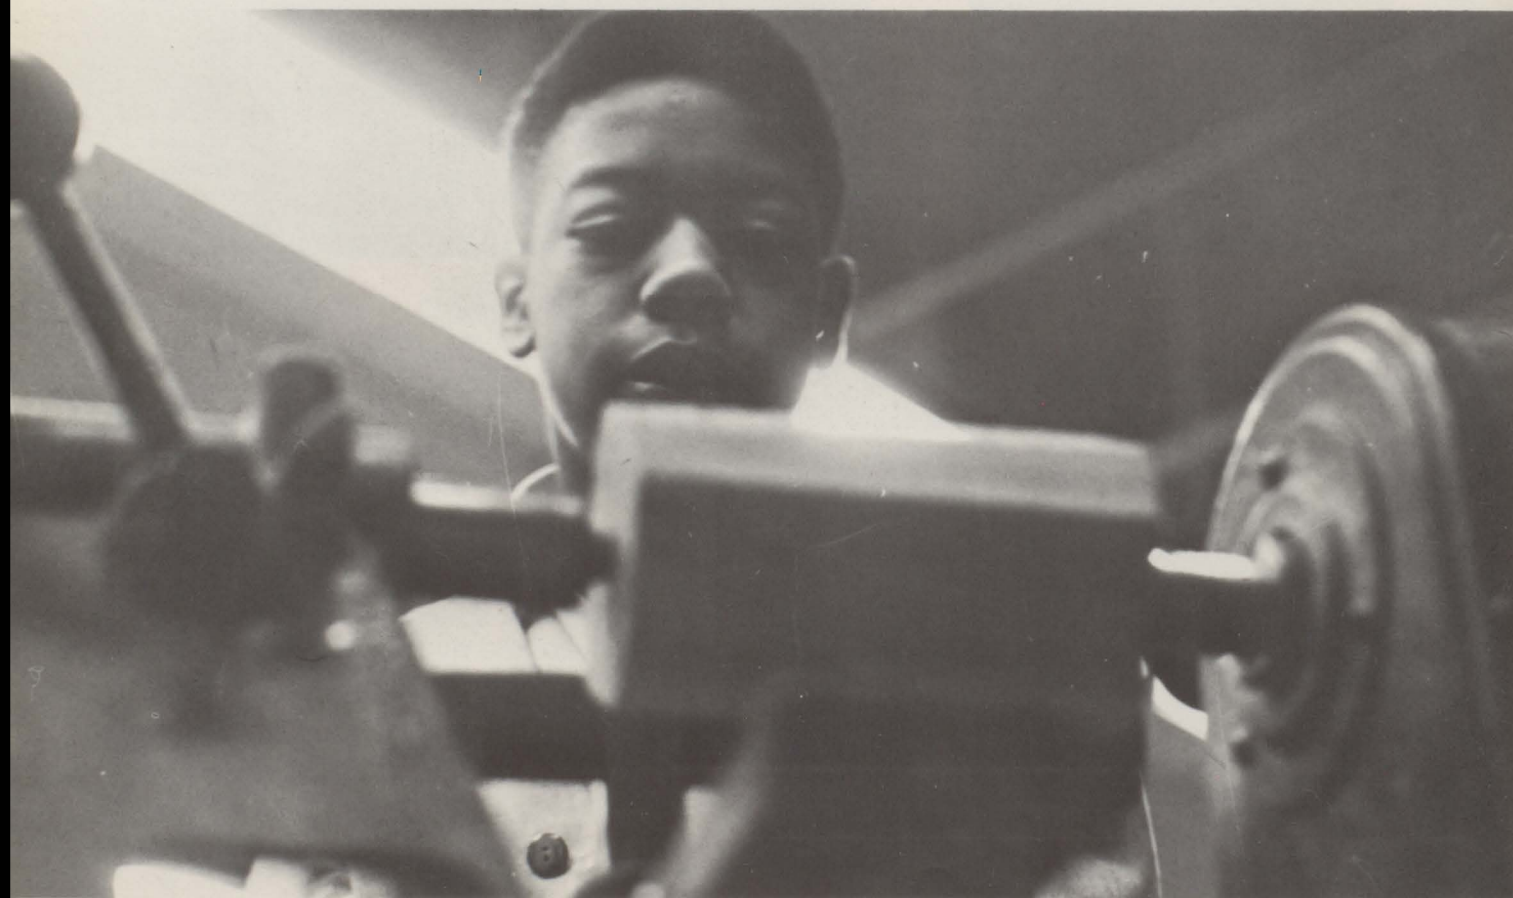

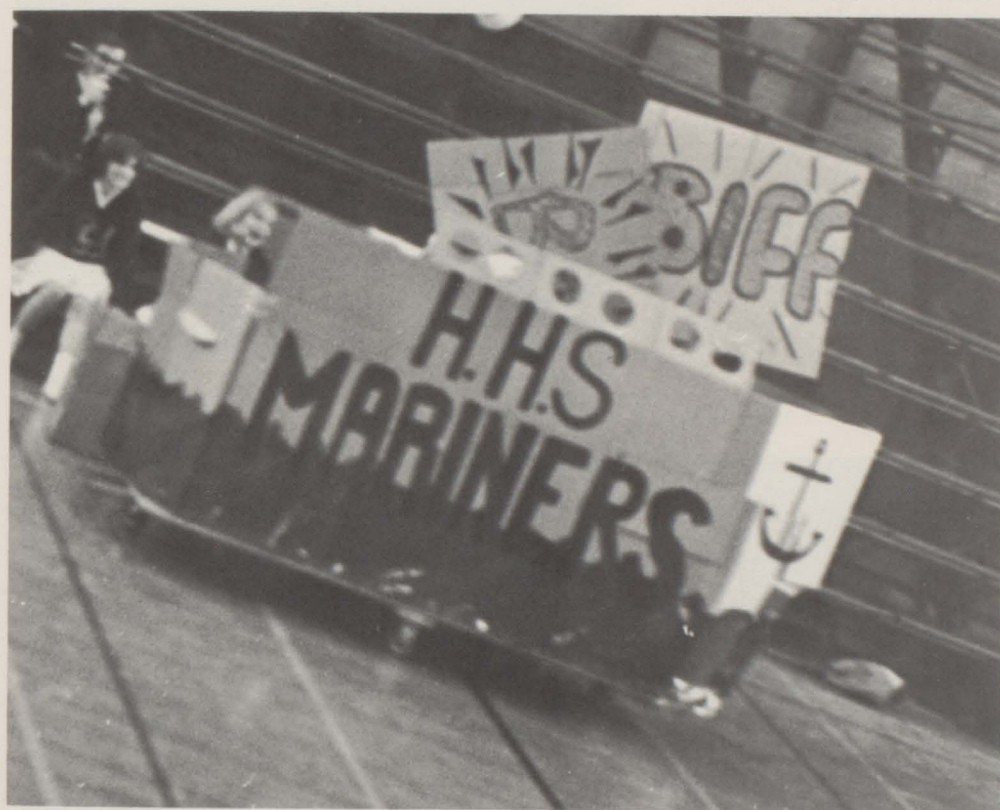

Miraculously, the weather eliminated one long day from the constant struggle with books and schedules . Other days were brightened by the late afternoon loneliness of classrooms and the thrill of rally sounds .

Spirit and pride are a tradition at Harbor. Their expression may be as apparent as a pep assembly or as obscure as individual achievement. Two of the more apparent are our band and the "It's Academic" contestants.

We reach beyond books for the most important parts of an education: the experiences which create mature individuals. Harbor's success or failure must be measured here. Our experiences at Harbor this year have, we believe, advanced us all in that direction.

DEDICATION

The Senior Class of 1966, Harbor High School, dedicates its yearbook to Mrs. Edna Beckman.

We are especially privileged to take this opportunity to express our sincerest appreciation for her warm friendship and guidance.

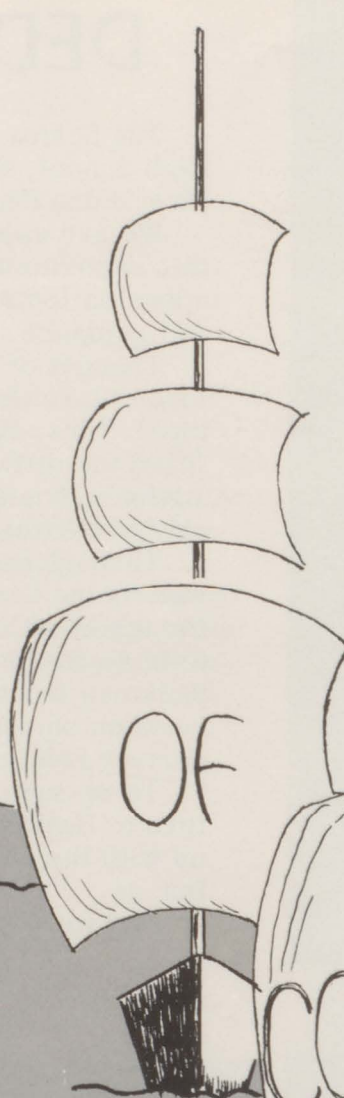

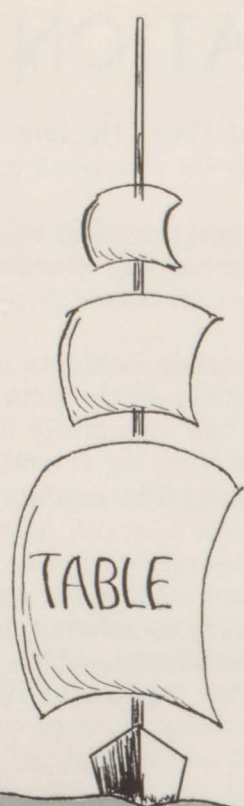

Thought of by all Harbor students as much more than secretary to the principal, Mrs. Beckman has cheerfully fulfilled the difficult task of being friend, adviser, confessor, and often mother to all Harborites.

Through her deep concern for the well-being of our school as a whole and for the countless individuals who come to her with personal problems, Mrs. Beckman has become the perfect bridge between student and faculty, a very important relationship in any school.

To be sure, years later when we return to Harbor, we know she will greet us with the same smile and will remember us.

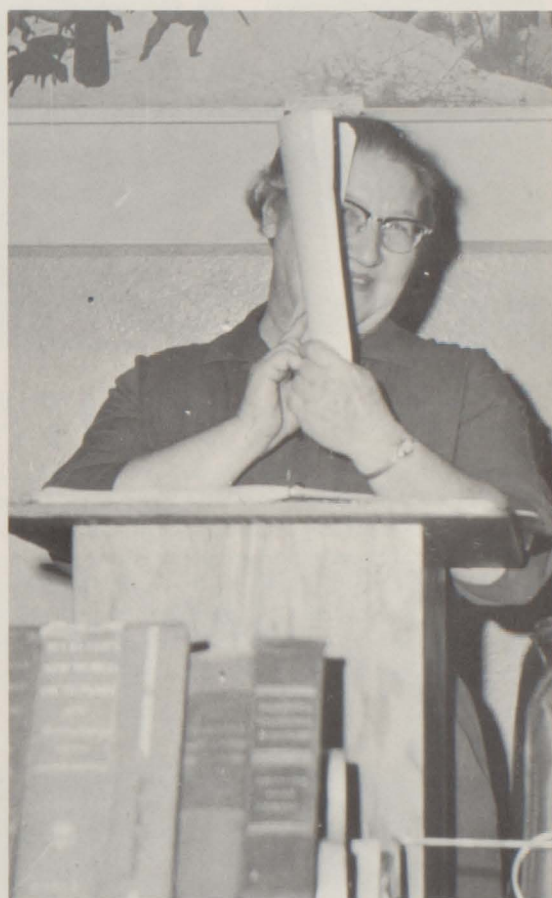

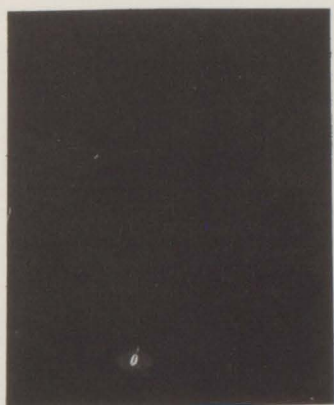

And we shall certainly remember her.

FACULTY & ADMINISTRATION

In behalf of the Board of Education and our entire faculty and staff, I am extending our sincere best wishes to each of you and your parents for much future success and happiness. The demands of our times make it imperative that each of you carry forth a personal philosophy of continued growth and development. This can be achieved through new experience and higher educational attainments.

The rich heritage of Harbor High School provides the background for you to set your goals high. The development of a better community and society is dependent upon you. Each of you will reflect, in no small way, the betterment of man if you foster positive attitudes, utilize all your abilities, and manifest human concerns.

Roger T. Beitler,
Superintendent of Schools

Administering the affairs of Harbor High School, as well as those of the whole Ashtabula Area City Schools, are Dr. Roger T. Beitler, superintendent, shown above; Harry S. Bowen, assistant superintendent, shown below; and the Board of Education, shown at the right: Miss Henrietta McKinsey, pres., and Carey S. Sheldon; Charles A. Meister, vice pres., and Richard M. Pavolino; Mrs. Lillian C. Cheney, clerk-treas., and Charles F. Sheppard.

J. B. E. Baker, principal during the first semester, is shown above. He was promoted to assistant supt.

Never was a nation builded so carefully and so skillfully as ours. Never was education so widespread, wealth so available, government put together so well as in America.

But weakening influences are among us. Deterioration is evident here and there. There is a weakening of morals, an increase of crime, early marriage and resultant divorce, children without the benefit of a loving home.

Irresponsibility and lack of initiative prevail. Those who did not need to build did not at first feel a compulsion to restore. What they had, had cost them too little. They appreciated it too little.

Now the time has come for men who appreciate, who care, who do make the effort to find out what is needed, and who find out how to do it.

Yours, Class of 1966, is this great structure, AMERICA, with all its glories, its strengths, its splendors. Yours, too, is the responsibility to appreciate, to care, and to restore.

Restore, Class of '66. Restore!

J. B. E. Baker, prin.

ADMINISTRATION

Murray M. Blake, assistant principal first semester; principal the second.

Although I have been your principal only a short time, I have known you well these years at Harbor High, as a teacher your freshman year and as assistant principal for two and a half years. Perhaps these varied roles have made it possible for me to appreciate you more and to have observed you with true appreciation, sharing your disappointments and your joys.

You have had four wonderful years at Harbor High--projects, prom, plays, yearbook, sports, fun, and studies. And now Commencement--an end to your days at Harbor but the beginning of your adult life, be it further studies, career, role of housewife, or the duty of service in our troubled times.

Cherish your memories, your friendships, the knowledge you have gained (not taking all with you, but leaving a part of yourselves). Do not be satisfied; keep your thirst for knowledge.

Graduates, be enthusiastic--to study, to experience, to learn. Take advantage of each opportunity to grow. Join the ranks of those who have preceded you through these portals. It is a pleasure to extend my sincere congratulations to the Class of '66.

Murray M. Blake, prin.

SENIORS

As we near our graduation, we look back in our memories and experiences as high school students. In '62 we left the peaceful world of our seventh and eighth grades to enter the more mature and active world of high school. We set goals for ourselves, not only as individuals but also as members of a group.

As freshmen we sold sweatshirts, displayed our dramatic ability in "Feudin' Mountain Boys," and held bake sales.

Our sophomore year began with the consolidation of Harbor, Ashtabula, and Saybrook schools. On the first day of school that year everyone was hesitant about meeting the new students, teachers, and administrators and doubtful about the change to the six period day. Despite these innovations we found courage to become and to continue as a whole, especially as we adjusted to these new situations. In a short time we were saying, "Now don't forget your bottles for the sophomore class" or "Come to the Snack Shack", for these were our special projects for the year. Now our class, larger and more confident, was looking forward to the junior year, the halfway point of our high school career.

THE CLASS OF 1966

Senior Class officers are Penelope Robinson, secretary; Jo Ann Macaulay, vice president; Jennifer Peterson, president; and Lynda DeBold, treasurer.

Advisers to the Senior Class are Richard Lenhart and Salvadore Carnabucci.

SENIORS OF HARBOR HIGH

At the beginning of our junior year the class officers and advisers selected the prom committee to plan the prom. We worked with a zeal such as no other class had shown. Taking orders for Homecoming mums was next on our agenda. We worked late into the afternoon, keeping our flowers fresh to show that our class could accomplish any goal. Then came the long-awaited arrival of our class rings. To us they symbolized many years of hard work and of striving to do our best to succeed. Our class was the first here to have the oval-shaped rings, a mark of our individuality.

Another project was selling candy. Through this ambitious drive we earned enough money to end most of our financial worries. This and all projects of the preceding years were held for the purpose of raising money for our junior-senior prom, which was called "The Inaugural Ball." The spirit, enthusiasm, and cheerfulness with which we all worked was a sight to see: the building of the columns, the garden walk, the fish pond, and the Capitol. There were the all too familiar cries of "Keep those seniors out of the gym!" Yes, that big event came and went, but it will be hard for us to forget.

In the senior assembly at the end of that year, the graduating class had us take an oath to uphold the "senior pride and honor." This marked the real start of another fun-filled year for us.

At last we were BIG seniors! We were approaching the turning point of our lives. Our year was filled with guidance meetings, tests, and conferences. But it was far from all work and no play.

Going along with the Christmas spirit, many of us decorated our lockers appropriately. After first semester exams there were more busy days: measuring for caps and gowns, ordering announcements, and other chores. The year was passing, and we were increasingly aware that graduation was drawing near. Although outwardly we could not wait for the big day, inwardly we felt a sadness at having to leave behind the familiar halls and faces, to enter into a strange world of new people and places.

We will always cherish the guidance of our faculty, our joys and sorrows, and most of all the solid education we have received here.

ACTIVITIES

PILLOW

The New York apartments of Jan Morrow and Brad Allen set the stage for "Pillow Talk," a three-act romantic comedy presented by the Junior Class of 1966. Directed by Miss Betty Jean O'Dell, the play roused the enthusiasm of the large audience, as the cast revealed the personality of each character and his role in the play.

The comedy concerns an attractive interior decorator who tries to use her phone but can't, since the other member of her party line, Brad Allen, a playboy song writer, has it constantly in use. Her complaints to the telephone company are in vain.

The plot thickens as Jan unknowingly meets Brad disguised as the Texan, Rex Stetson. Brad's split personality brings about a serious change in his attitude toward love and results in much confusion.

THE INAUGURAL BALL

The glorious week of construction . . .

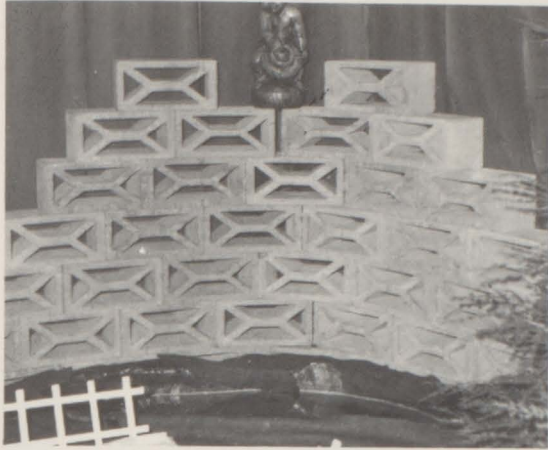

The car stopped slowly at the curb when from the entrance walked the doorman, dressed in stunning black tails. He escorted her to the door while her date left to park the car. Soon this couple and many more were seen walking into our "Inaugural Ball."

The lobby was draped in white, and as the couples entered the transformed gym, they saw the beautiful white columns at the edge of the terraced garden walk, the fish pond, the decorated tables, and the mural of the Capitol.

Soon they were walking along the terrace, excitement mounting inside them. Having left their wraps at the hatcheck, the couples descended into the ballroom.

We "inaugurate" our "President" and "First Lady."

Enjoying the fruits
of our labor

Throughout the evening the juniors and seniors danced to the music of the Premiers.

At 10:30 Nancy Stapleton and Allen Ray were announced as our President and First Lady.

Then came the traditional break--the serving of the food. At midnight the After Prom party began.

During the latter part of the evening everyone danced to the beat of the Bumble Bees.

As the evening drew to a close, all realized that this prom would soon be over, but deep in their hearts they knew they would always remember the beauty and excitement of the "Inaugural Ball."

. . . . that day of destruction.

VARIETY SHOW

"This Is My Country" was the theme of the twenty-fifth annual Variety Show, presented March 2 in a matinee for students and an evening show for adults.

The Senior Girls opened the show by singing the theme song and "How High the Moon." Miss Varieties, whose identity was secret until that moment, welcomed the audience and explained the theme.

Participating in the program were over 20 acts--pantomines, short skits by National Thespians and others, singing groups, majorettes twirling to the tune of "There's No Business Like Show Business," and Modern Dancers interpreting "Batman" and "No Matter What Shape."

The choir and the Goddess of Liberty, her identity also a secret until that time, closed the program.

Charles Ballo and Mary McMillan rehearse their skit from "Fiddler on the Roof."

Miss O'Dell attempts the stick dance with Jane Nelson and Karen Jopperi holding the sticks and Emmy Genato instructing.

"Fantasticks" is the name of the skit Jane Nelson is rehearsing with Tom Waid, Harry Felt, and Greg Schille.

The Cherry family have a discussion.

On April 1 and 2 the Class of '66 presented "Ring Around Elizabeth," a three-act comedy by Charl Armstrong.

Laura DeHelian, in the title role of Elizabeth, is the center of an annoying household: Her dullard husband (Jim Miller); her daughters--one (Debbie Briggs and Gigi Saris) in love with a cynical playboy (Jim Eller and Greg Schillo), the other (Susan Erickson and Marketta Seppelin) noisily precocious; a selfish, antique-hoarding mother (Jennifer Peterson and Suzanne Smalley); a fussy, fire-chasing father-in-law (Jon Field and David Fish); a nosey house guest (Karen Jopperi and Susan Kujanpa); and a bossy cook (Jane Nelson and Sandra Riippa).

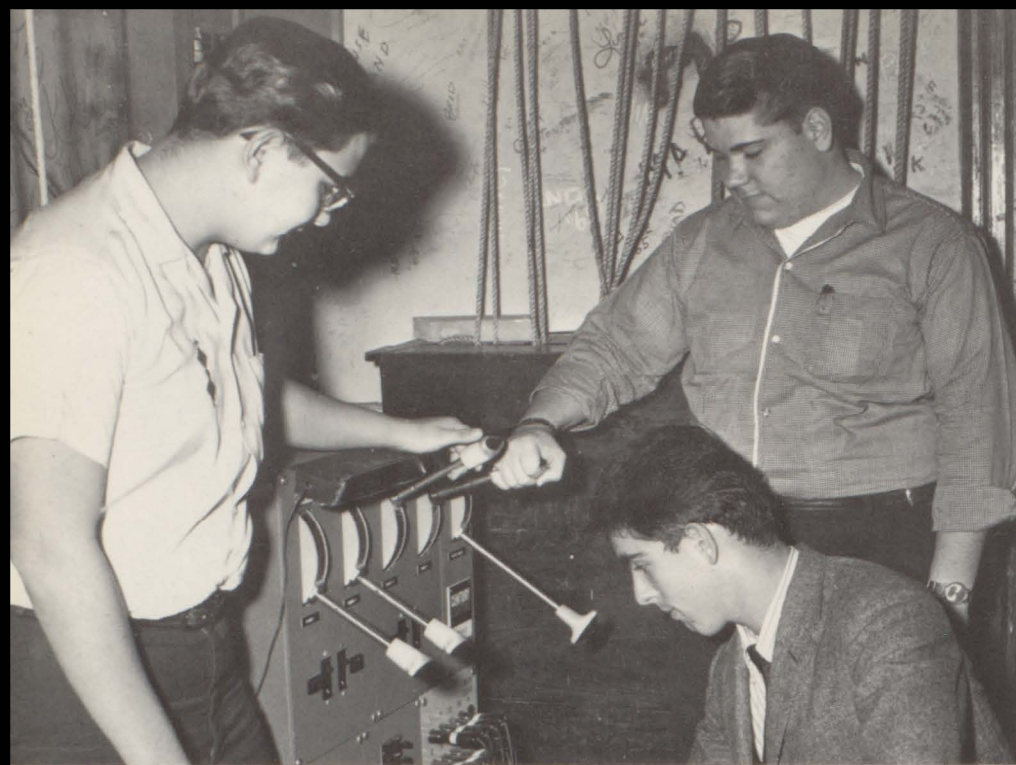

Elizabeth has received a legacy which all the others are eager to get. Finally she reaches the breaking point, suffers an attack of amnesia, believes she is twenty years younger, and embarrasses the family with her antics.

Others in the cast were Betsy Pearson, Ann Johnson, Ken Frisbie, Lou Mazzola, and Brian Salmen.

YEARBOOK

Each spring Harbor students await the arrival of the Mariner yearbook, which highlights the activities of the year.

It especially focuses attention on the seniors and the big events of their past years: the prom, class plays, homecoming, academic achievements, sporting events, and exchange student.

With Brian Salmen and Suzanne Smalley as editors-in-chief, the different committees worked constantly to meet their

For a project this year the staff adopted a family for Christmas.

Through hard work and long hours the Mariner Yearbook staff has labored to present this Mariner to you.

Editor's Message

As we reach the end of our high school years, we seniors feel that we will leave a part of ourselves here at Harbor. Yet, by means of this yearbook, we may take a part of Harbor with us in the years to come.

In the '66 Mariner we have attempted to capture the enthusiasm, the pleasures, the disappointments, and even some of the routine of this past year.

There are many who deserve sincere thanks for their invaluable help in putting together this yearbook.

First we would like to give very special thanks to Miss Mary Boyce, our adviser, who not only directed and advised us but also worked right along with us.

There are many others--the committee chairmen and their committees; Pete Prentner, publishers' representative; Art Taylor and Bill Friedel, our photographers; the faculty and administration; our patrons and advertisers--who helped to make our yearbook possible.

To all of these we extend our sincere thanks for their part in this year's Mariner.

INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE

"It's the thought that counts," and Emy shows her thoughts through her Philippine gifts.

EXCHANGE

Emily Genato, Harbor High School's eighth foreign exchange student, is from Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya, Philippines. There she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alberto Genato, and her two brothers --Edgar, 19, and Allan, 11.

Emy, as she is called by Harbor students, is living with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smalley and their daughter, Suzanne, an HHS senior. Suzanne has an older sister, Gayle, who is married.

Asked to compare the food of the Philippines with that here, Emy simply replied, "Our food is entirely different."

As to the weather, she said that she has never seen snow. "In the Philippines we don't have heaters but air conditioning units," she commented. She considers the United States to be close to her heart.

"Emmy adds a sparkle to our home with her quiet but warm personality and cute smile," Suzanne commented.

Laughter is a universal thing.

Emy's school in the Philippines differs from Harbor in that it has eleven periods a day instead of six. School sports, however, are quite similar except that soccer replaces football.

Back home Emy was head major-ette of the drum and bugle corps of her high school. She participated in many of her school clubs.

Her favorite hobby is Philippine folk dancing.

Emy's stay in Ashtabula is sponsored by the HHS chapter of the American Field Service, whose adviser is Lowell Lamb. Student representatives to the AFS this year are Doug Payne, a senior, and Grace Johnson, a junior.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society is an organization whose members are chosen for their character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

Under the direction of Miss Eleanor Tilton, the club has conducted a tutorial program, in which they help students with math, chemistry, or language after school, at the request of such students.

A yearly activity sponsored by the club is Bermuda Day, when students may for ten cents purchase the privilege of coming to school in bermudas. The money goes toward the cost of pins for new members.

QUILL AND SCROLL

The Quill and Scroll is an international organization. Since it is an honorary organization, it does not have officers or regular meetings.

At the beginning of this year there were only two student members, Brian Salmen and Suzanne Smalley, the two yearbook editors. As the year's activities of yearbook and newspaper staffs proved their merit, others were able to qualify, so that the group increased in quantity and quality.

To qualify, a student must be of junior or senior standing, he must rank in the upper third of his class at the time of his selection, and he must be recommended for outstanding work in connection with a school publication.

Initiations are held, usually in the spring, and there is a banquet following the initiation.

HOMECOMING, 1965

The week of Homecoming was a rainy and windy one. Everyone hoped that the weather would clear, but it didn't. Throughout the first half of the Homecoming game, Harbor vs. Conneaut, it drizzled. Although the weather was bad, the Harbor Mariners were leading at half-time, 6-0.

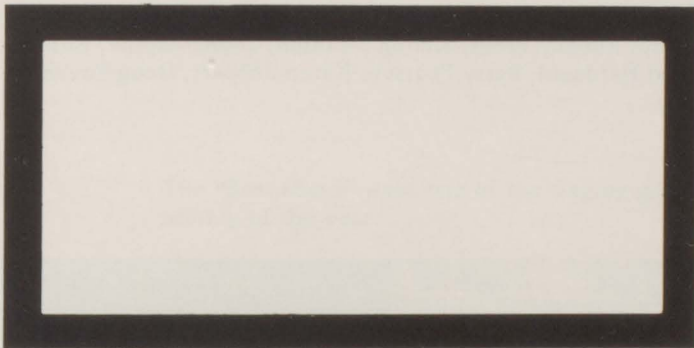

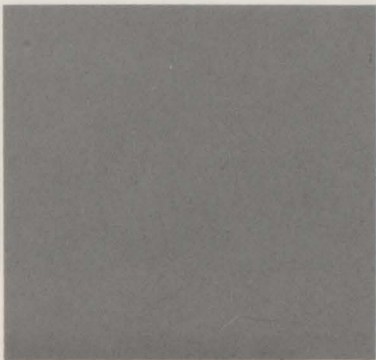

The candidates, nominated by the Senior Class on October 1, . . . Lynda DeBold, Susie Erickson, Emily Genato; our honorary candidate, Karen Jopperi, Jayne Madison, and Penny Robinson . . . were anxiously awaiting the half-time. Their escorts . . . Roger Hall, Brian Salmen, Ron Kantorak, Ken Frisbie, Dave Tobias, and Greg Schillo . . . drove them out on the field as it began to rain again.

The 1964 Homecoming Queen Jayne Martino presented the Homecoming Queen for 1965, Penny Robinson. The co-captains of the football team, Al Burns and Mike Potter, crowned her, while Mr. Baker, our principal, gave her a bouquet of yellow roses with purple ribbons.

At the Homecoming Dance Saturday evening, the coronation ceremonies were carried out by Doug Payne, Student Council President. Penny was crowned with a floral wreath. The Premiers played for this dance which was sponsored by the Senior Girls' Club. The night was a memorable one, especially for Penny and her court.

The team, striving hard, ended their tear-stained season by losing to Erie Strong Vincent, St. John, Edgewood, Ashtabula, and Madison.

The Mariner football schedule ended its season with something new: the 1966 Football Preview game played against the Ashtabula Panthers.

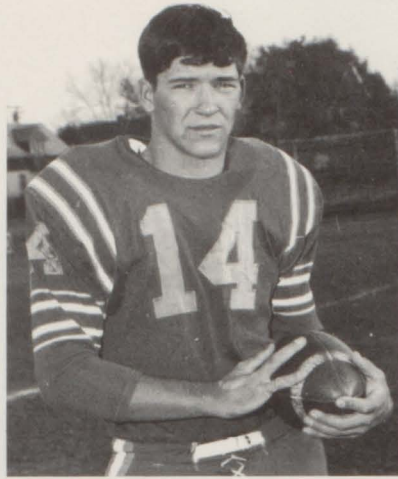

Coaching this year's football team were John Abel, Ed Armstrong, Bill Wasulko, Sam Carnabucci, and David O'Dell. Al Burns and Mike Potter were the co-captains.

The Freshman football team of 1965 had a very successful season, winning 4, tying 1, and losing 1. These fighting Mariner Frosh defeated Jefferson, Conneaut, Geneva, and Edgewood.

Their only defeat came when they lost to the Freshman Panthers of Ashtabula High.

They tied the Kingsville football team.

With the good advice of Steve Candela and Sam Carnabucci the team fought its way through a winning season.
